Open Access to Support Educators and Students Amid Growing COVID-19 Impact

As campuses and communities contend with the increasing impact of COVID-19, providing continuity of learning is more important than ever. We want to ensure instructors who need to teach remotely have the necessary tools to help their students.

Beginning today, instructors and their students without an adopted online learning solution, such as WileyPLUS, Knewton Alta, or zyBooks, can receive free access to our courseware for the remaining Spring 2020 term. This access will provide personalized, auto-graded assignments, activities, assessments, and lecture replacement resources, as well as dedicated support from our Customer Success Teams.

Instructors teaching at impacted institutions looking to provide continuity of learning can request access to WileyPLUS or Knewton Alta by simply completing this request form . Instructors looking for zyBooks access can apply through the zyBooks website.

Current WileyPLUS, Knewton Alta, or zyBooks users, please connect with our support teams to help with any transitions to teaching online.

We hope these resources will ease the stress of impacted campuses as well as the many students they need to support. To learn more about how Wiley is helping the global community, such as researchers and professionals, please see our news release here.

Sincerely,

Wiley
