The infographic is a vertical layout with a yellow and blue color scheme. It features three main columns. The first column, 'ADAPT', shows icons for activities, assessments, and assignments. The second column, 'DELIVER & RECORD', shows a lecturer at a whiteboard, with sub-sections for 'FACE-2-FACE IN-PERSON STUDENTS' and 'REMOTE SYNCHRONOUS STUDENTS', and a 'WATCH RECORDING' section. The third column, 'OFFER', shows a lecturer at a desk with a grid of student icons, and four house icons representing online sessions.

The Flex@Pitt Playbook is now available and can help you frame options to design and develop a course that can accommodate the needs of in-person and remote students and instructors, address issues associated with possible rotating student cohorts, and flexibly respond to the possibility of changing public health regulations and recommendations. Visit the playbook resources on the Flex@Pitt Teaching Support course in Canvas for additional resources, workshops, diagrams, and tips.

You may also visit our redesigned Teaching Center home page to browse resources related to Flex@Pitt implementation steps, key recommendations, remote course development strategies, and asynchronous teaching methods.

Flex@Pitt Supplemental Technology Requests

In anticipation of the Flex@Pitt instructional model, our center is available to consult with schools and departments regarding their installed classroom technology needs. If your learning space will not receive new equipment through Pitt IT's Flex@Pitt installation, submit a supplemental technology consultation request and a Teaching Center representative will contact you to offer advice and assistance.

Additional Updates & Information

In case you missed them, these articles were published earlier this week:

- Pitt IT has posted information about equipped classrooms, classroom technology, the hybrid classroom experience, and technical support and training — all in support of the fall Flex@Pitt instructional model.
- PittWire released more details on fall classrooms, technology, and teaching.
- The COVID-19 Medical Response Office sent out a message to students regarding the strategy for campus arrivals in August.

Remembering Maxine Bruhns, "A Citizen of the World"

For more than 50 years, E. Maxine Bruhns served as the director of Pitt's Nationality Rooms in the Cathedral of Learning, collectively designated as a historic landmark by the Pittsburgh History and Landmarks Foundation. Over the years, staff from the Teaching Center have worked with Maxine in various ways, supporting her efforts to educate faculty, students, the Pitt community, and campus visitors about the diverse cultures and traditions of immigrant and refugee communities from around the world. Our staff reflected on working with Maxine in our latest Teaching Center blog.
